The Affordable Housing Reader
The Affordable Housing Reader brings together classic works and contemporary writing on the themes and debates that have animated the field of affordable housing policy as well as the challenges in achieving the goals of policy on the ground. The Reader aimed at professors, students, and researchers provides an overview of the literature on housing policy and planning that is both comprehensive and interdisciplinary. It is particularly suited for graduate and undergraduate courses on housing policy offered to students of public policy and city planning. The Reader is structured around the key debates in affordable housing, ranging from the conflicting motivations for housing policy, through analysis of the causes of and solutions to housing problems, to concerns about gentrification and housing and race. Each debate is contextualized in an introductory essay by the editors, and illustrated with a range of texts and articles. Elizabeth Mueller and Rosie Tighe have brought together for the first time into a single volume the best and most influential writings on housing and its importance for planners and policy-makers.

Customer Reviews

This reader contains a collection of relevant and timely articles regarding housing policy with a specific focus on low income housing. It thoroughly discusses and explains housing policy history, current legislation and other trends in the U.S. housing market. I would recommend for a graduate level course or senior undergraduate course.

Comprehensive reader which is a great reference regarding all of the dimensions of the problems facing getting well located, opportunity enhancing, non-segregated, affordable housing built
